

3 Signs of Autopilot Leadership and How to Combat It

As Christian leaders, we know God called us, loves us, and empowers us for the work of the ministry. But even though these truths are the wind beneath our wings, we sometimes take them for granted and lead on autopilot. Here's how to stay engaged with God and lead vibrantly, and how to tell if you're on autopilot.

3 Ways to Be Zealous and Effective

- 1. Press in to know Jesus more. Paul prays that God will give us a spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him, and that our hearts will be enlightened so we'll more fully realize the hope and glory and might of God. Begin praying Ephesians 1:17-23 for yourself, and ask God to open your eyes to see more of His goodness and grandeur.
- 2. Experience more of His love. In Ephesians 3:16-19, Paul prays that God's Spirit, in our inner being, will strengthen us so we'll be rooted and grounded in His love and come to know its immeasurable vastness. Ask God to empower you to comprehend and personally experience His extravagant love.
- 3. Be spiritually meek and dependent. This one surprised me. In Ephesians 6:19, Paul requests prayer that he'll receive words in order to open his mouth boldly to proclaim the mystery of the gospel. You'd think that Paul—an apostle who'd personally encountered Jesus—would never lack for words or zeal. But he was human, he recognized his spiritual need, and he requested prayer that he'd fulfill his life mission.

3 Signs of Autopilot Leadership

- 1. Boredom. Does it feel like you're going through the motions? Have you settled into a blasé routine? Is there no new mountain to climb?
- 2. Diminished joy. Do ministry advancements and life transformations that once swelled your heart, now have little effect?
- 3. Lack of zeal. Is your conviction-level dipping? When you talk about the ministry, does it feel a bit rote?

Lisa Hosler is president of Susquehanna Valley Pregnancy Services (SVPS), where she has served since 1985. SVPS is a life-affirming ministry that serves people in southeastern Pennsylvania, partners with organizations, and resources leaders and the church at large. Lisa speaks nationally and internationally about leading from a place of intimacy with Christ and seeking God collectively for greater alignment, agreement, and advancement.

To request a speaker or media interview, email lisa@svps.org.